

Indigenous Communities of North America

Prior to the colonization that occurred between the 16th and 19th centuries, Indigenous Peoples in the Northeastern North American continent had rich cultures with sizable villages and social hierarchies.

A few of the larger tribes included the Iroquois, Ojibwa, Sauk, Fox, and the Illinois.

